When Pius I communicated Queen Elizabeth, there was no idea on the part of the English that any new church had come into being. There had been no changes in the ceremonies of the church; there had been none in her creeds. Clergy and people down to the day when Pius I deposed Elizabeth attended the same parish Church as they always attended. Then, no doubt some took away from the church they had known & loved, Kitchen for ex. was bishop of London from 1545 under Henry 8 to 1563 under Elizabeth. Dooduch and Thurlby were bishops in the days of Henry 8 and there were no less bishops in the days of Mary I. It is true that the Church of England submitted to Rome under Henry 8 and refused to submit any longer.
